2. The about 150 armored vehicles, which had previously been parked in the open south of the barracks installation, were sheltered either in, or between, the garages.<sup>2</sup>
3. The barracks installation northwest of Berliner Strasse still housed the officers' instruction course. A worker in the installation said that some of these officers had received VP uniforms and, together with VPs and tanks, were transferred to Torgelow. The course still numbered about 100 officers.<sup>3</sup>
4. During the time of observation, intensive vehicular traffic was observed in Prenzlau, particularly between the airfield and the barracks installation southeast of Berliner Strasse. Almost all vehicles seen belonged to the VP and only a few were Soviet vehicles. All VP vehicles were driven by VP personnel. There were a few Soviet assistant drivers.
